Introduction to the Results Framework

A Leader's Guide to Executing Change and Delivering Results

- For Public Sector Leaders
- By Public Sector Leaders
- To Improve Public Sector Services

A message about How and Hope

Results Framework: 4 Parts

- People are Policy
- Follow the Facts
- Focus on How
- Push for Results

People Are Policy:

Start Here to assure the capacity to act

- Select Leaders and Build Teams
- It's about Knowledge AND Know-How
- Constructive Tension: New People and Current Staff
- Create a Dedicated Project Team (2-3 people core)

We always start here when we attack a problem to ensure that there is the capability and capacity to get the job done. Our focus is NOT on their party-affiliation, but instead on the individual's knowledge and know-how.

Follow the Facts:

Defines the problem-to-solve and points to interventions

- Gather Data Evidence – critical information
 - Snap-shots and trends: Budget, Staffing, # Served
 - Reports and Program Descriptions
 - Performance metrics: Individual transactions, Program-level
- Uncover Points of Pain – stories that demonstrate real-world impact
 - Personal anecdotes from customers
 - Examples of what's broken from staff/providers
 - Media reports

Following the facts is not about the selective use of data to win an argument. It's about the clear-eyed objective to understand the problem.

Tip: Round the table -- all participants speak, listen, and be heard

What: One by one, each person—regardless of position or title—can ask a question or make a comment.

Why: A great equalizer. It surfaces what people are truly thinking and new facts/issues—building a common understanding, engagement, and trust.

Steps for facilitators:

- ✓ Ask the leader for observations about the major concerns to address
- ✓ Seek volunteers to comment next. Then direct the conversation to go around the room in order of seating, so that everyone participates
- ✓ Encourage each participant to describe what they believe are key points of pain —as well as ideas to tackle the concerns raised

Tip: Get Out of the Tower

Why: Whether private or public sector, there is a tendency to believe that how to do things better lies within the organization itself. While sometimes true, it's an incredibly limiting perspective.

What: Reaching outside the organization helps break the information bubble that forms around leaders—while building new knowledge and capacity.

How: Get out...

- Of the office. Talk AND LISTEN to all types of people directly— suppliers, influencers, and especially customers.
- Beyond internal reports. Seek outside experts and comparative peer data.
- Make site visits. Meet the managers/staff. Solicit their input.
- For the customer experience. Take the role of customer to see first-hand problems and potential.

Focus on How:

The structure to move from fact problems to meaningful results

What to do: A Charter of Activities—an implicit promise

- Examples: Action plan, Administrative order, Program description, Budget appropriation, Enabling statute

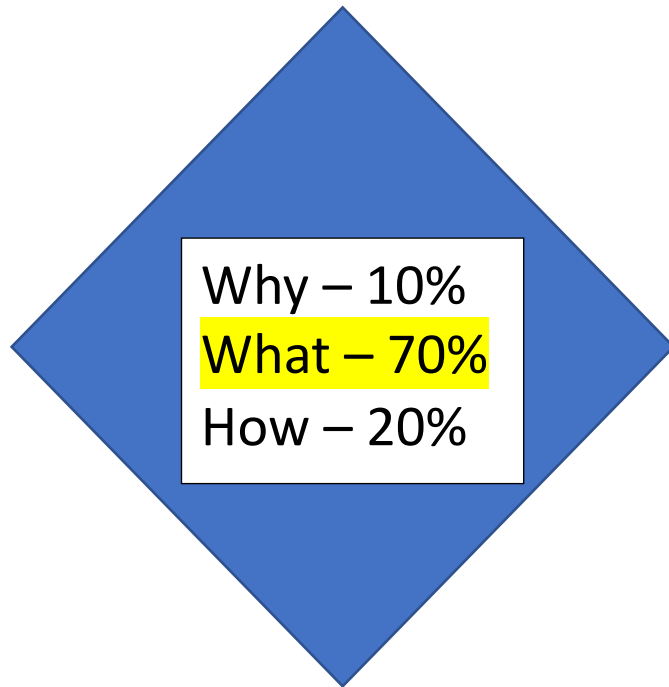

How to do it: Methods to organize the work—from design to delivery

- Work-Management Triangle: Time, Resources, Scope
- Team/Dedicated Team/Strategic Ops Team
- Releases/Project Management
- Agile Scrum
- Leadership Team Reviews

Talented people and being data-driven are not sufficient. Results require an understanding of how things work, a method, and the know-how to make it happen.

Emphasize Both “What to do” and “How to do it”

Poised on a Precarious Point

A Foundation Built on What & How

Tip: Flip work-management triangle: Time drives results

The Triangle: Scope, Time, Resources

Don't do what we did: Before, we started projects focused on Scope and a “waterfall” approach with lengthy timelines and little to show along the way.

Start with time. Now, we set Time targets of a few weeks.

- Exploding with urgency
- Embracing an “agile” approach
- Maximizing Resources—laser-focused key Scope items
- Employing short-timeframe “releases” for follow-on

Applying the Concept of 'Release':

A Release Leverages Time and Project Management

Key Steps:

- ✓ Set overall release timeframe (i.e., 8-12 weeks)
- ✓ Determine the core workstreams, including critical problems, essential deliverables
- ✓ Assign a team leader and staff/consultant resources (Dedicated Team)
- ✓ Further breakdown the workstream into 2-week sprints (Agile sprints)
- ✓ For each workstream, hold the Daily Scrum! A 15-minute stand-up meeting
 - 1) What did you do yesterday?
 - 2) What do you expect to get accomplished by tomorrow?
 - 3) What are the impediments to prevent this from happening?
- ✓ Hold Leadership reviews 2x/weekly to help resolve issues, coordinate between efforts

Focus on what it takes to accomplish the deliverables in the release timeframes.
Be rigorous. Be fair. Be relentless. Be innovative.

Push for Results: Determine actual performance

“Never mistake activity for achievement.” John Wooden

- Measure what matters (performance metrics, project status)
 - Overall / Program
 - Customer / Transaction – Point of Pain
- Distrust Averages!
- Discuss Results in Leadership Reviews
- Measure. Evaluate. Adjust. Repeat!

This objective evaluation, not a spin on how to interpret performance, then allows for rational, real-world adjustments.

Tip: Leadership Reviews: Candor and Questions

Project Management: The ability to color It Red.

- Green: on track and on time
- Yellow: issues but will be resolved by deadline
- Red is a call for help—not a signal of failure, but requires leadership action
- Marking an item red is not easy

Performance metrics: Questions encouraged.

- Examining a target moves discussion to facts and away from the personal.
- Anyone can ask a question, observe something isn't working, or recommend a specific intervention. Discussion is safe.

To be comfortable about raising the uncomfortable to get at better results.

'HER NAME WAS BELLA'

Glimpses of a happy girl, despite a hard life

By Andrea Ramirez

It was a warm, sunny day in the heart of Boston's South End neighborhood, and a young girl named Bella was playing in the park. She was laughing and running around with her friends, a scene that would become a poignant memory for her mother, who would later describe her as "a really happy girl."

Daily Scrum

- Answer three questions
 - What did I do yesterday?
 - What will I do today?
 - Are there any impediments to address?
- The Scrum is a 15-minute time-boxed meeting to plan for the next 24 hours.
- Focus on reviewing the work since the last Daily Scrum and forecasting the work that could be done before the next one
- The Daily Scrum is held at the same time and place each day to reduce complexity
- The Scrum Master moderates all conversation
- All team members are equal
- No Sidebar discussions, take these offline
- Keep the Sprint's goal in view
- Team Members answer once to their Sprint workload
- One person speaks at a time
